StatInf - The future of non-functional analysis

StatInf develops a software for designing embedded systems, primarily by optimising and securing the use of processors on which programs run.

RocqStat™, StatInf's solution for analysing the temporal behaviour of systems is hardware agnostic for our customers.

StatInf reduces the time needed to complete the development cycle of an embedded system. RocqStat improves the users testing workflow and makes possible the use of multi-core processors in mission-critical areas.

Become our partner! 3 reasons why:

StatInf is currently building an ecosystem centred around innovation for embedded systems. Reducing development life cycles, optimising processes, improving quality, simplifying testing - all these subjects are at the heart of our daily reflections. As a partner, you can be involved in these discussions and benefit from cutting-edge knowledge and technical expertise on these subjects.

This partner network also enables us to set up a virtuous feedback loop on the use of our RocqStat™ solution, allowing you to participate in the functional prioritisation of the product roadmap and contribute to the evolution of RocqStat™ towards your ideal product.

Last but not least, this partnership proposal gives you access to licences of our product at a reduced rate in return for contributions to our product and development work.
